 - Why they're so cost-effective for investors
 - Who you should target for the best results
 - How to craft strong, conversational messages
 - What tools help automate and track everything
 - A challenge to launch your first campaign

📌 Why SMS & Ringless Voicemail Work

- They're fast, direct, and personal
- Cost per message is extremely low
- You can scale to hundreds of leads per day
- Automation handles delivery and follow-up
- Great alternative to cold calling or direct mail

 Example: A seller may ignore an email or postcard, but they'll likely glance at a simple, authentic text.

📌 Who Should You Target?

The best results come from:

- ✅ Absentee owners

- ✓ High-equity homeowners
- ✓ Vacant property leads
- ✓ Tired landlords
- ✓ Pre-foreclosure property lists

These owners are more likely to respond and consider a sale—especially if they’re dealing with stress or property fatigue.

📌 What to Say – SMS Basics

Keep your message short, personal, and direct:

“Hi, this is Mia. I’m a local buyer. Would you consider selling the property at 318 Maple Street?”

📌 Avoid sounding robotic or pushy—just start a conversation.

📌 What to Say – RVM Basics

Your voicemail should sound like you’re speaking to a neighbor:

“Hi, this is Mia. I’m a local real estate investor looking to buy a property in your area. I came across your home and just wanted to see if you’d be open to chatting. No pressure—just call or text me back if you’d like to talk. Thanks.”

📌 Keep it under 30 seconds and sound natural.

📌 Time and Cost Breakdown

- SMS campaign setup takes about 30–60 minutes
- SMS messages cost around $0.01–$0.03 per message
- RVM (Ringless Voicemail) setup takes 45–90 minutes, including message recording
- RVM drops cost about $0.05–$0.10 per voicemail
- You can send 100–200 texts per day using automation
- You can send several hundred voicemails per day, depending on your provider
- Both strategies are highly affordable and easy to scale as you grow

📌 A small daily spend can generate consistent seller conversations—without cold calling manually.
