

Virtual Assistants for Lead Generation

Work Smarter, Save Time, and Build Your Business While You Work

📌 Introduction to Virtual Assistants

This lesson explores how Virtual Assistants (VAs) can help you grow your real estate investing business—especially if your time is limited. Whether you're working full-time, managing a family, or juggling multiple roles, a VA can become your daily lead generator.

You'll learn what a VA does, how to find one, what to prepare before hiring, and how to get them started with lead generation, follow-up, and outreach tasks. VAs let you focus on closing deals while they handle the groundwork.

✅ What to Expect and How It Works

This lesson covers:

- What a VA is and how they support real estate investors
 - Why consistency matters more than complexity in lead generation
 - What tools and systems to set up before hiring
 - Where to find qualified VAs and how much they cost
 - Questions to ask before hiring
 - A challenge to help you take the first step toward outsourcing

📌 What Is a Virtual Assistant (VA)?

- A VA is a remote worker who helps run key parts of your business
- They can call, text, follow up, and manage leads in your CRM
- Most are fluent in English and experienced in real estate tasks
- They help you scale—even while you're at your day job

📝 Example: While you're working your 9–5, your VA could be following up with 20 sellers and setting two new appointments for you.

📌 Why Use a VA as a Real Estate Investor?

- Your tools and funding may be set—but your time is limited
 - A VA works while you focus on closing or handling other responsibilities
 - You remain in control—they simply handle the daily outreach and admin
 - Momentum builds because outreach happens daily, not occasionally

📌 Why It Works

- Most investors fail from inconsistency—not lack of knowledge
 - A VA brings structure to your marketing and follow-up
 - They keep your pipeline moving forward, even when you're busy
 - You focus on high-value actions—offers, negotiations, closings

📌 What Can a VA Do for You?

- Cold call or text leads
- Log data into your CRM
- Follow up with warm or cold leads
- Set appointments with motivated sellers
- Clean and organize lead lists

📌 Their work builds your pipeline—day by day, hour by hour.

📌 What You Need Before Hiring

- A CRM like REI BlackBook to store and track leads
- A dialer tool like Mojo, Smartphone, or CallTools for efficient calling
- A skip-traced lead list and a basic call/text script
- One hour to train and onboard your VA

📌 Getting organized first makes onboarding smooth and efficient.

📌 Where to Find a Real Estate VA

- Facebook groups: search “REI Virtual Assistants”
- Upwork.com and OnlineJobs.ph
- Ask for referrals in the Partner Driven community
- Look for callers and texters already trained for real estate

How Much Do VAs Cost?

- $3–$8/hour for most overseas VAs
- Some services offer flat monthly pricing ($500–$1,000/month)
- Start with 10–20 hours/week and scale up over time
- Pay through Wise.com or Payoneer—safe, global payment platforms
- Always start with a short trial period

What to Ask When Hiring a VA

- Do you have real estate calling/texting experience?
- What hours and time zone do you work in?
- Can you share a sample call or script?
- Do you have quiet workspace and strong internet?
- Are you familiar with CRM and Google Sheets?

 These questions help you find the right fit—and avoid the wrong ones.

Key Takeaways

- VAs help you run your business daily—even when you're unavailable
- They create consistency, follow-up, and lead management
- Setup is simple with the right tools and training
- You remain the strategist—your VA handles the execution
- Great VAs grow with your business and free up your time

Student Challenge – Your First VA Step

Try this challenge this week:

- Join 3 “REI Virtual Assistant” groups on Facebook
- Post a short message about the help you need (cold caller, texter, etc.)
- Interview at least one or two candidates
- Ask for call samples and experience
- If ready, prepare a short script and list of leads for a test run

 Whether you hire now or later, starting the process will build your confidence and momentum. You're closer than you think.
